Access

To access EFI Barcelona offices at Saint Leopold you should enter the Site via the main entrance gate at the Administration Pavilion. This is in the intersection of Street Saint Antoni Maria Claret with Street Cartagena. Saint Pau Security and Information team are stationed in the Administration Pavilion's lobby. You should present your identification document at the reception desk, and they will give you a visitor's badge or black sticker. Swipe your visitor's badge over the magnetic card reader on top of the baffle gate to gain access. Purses, backpacks, briefcases and similar belongings, as well as any metal and electronic items, will have to go through a security scanner located right next to the reception desk. You will have to go through a security arch metal scanner.

Once you are cleared and enter the Site, you will be in the Central Garden area. EFI's Saint Leopold Pavilion is the second one up, on the right side. See map below.

Ensure to retain your visitor's badge or black sticker for the duration of your visit. When you leave through the Administration Pavilion, go to the exit doors located on either side of the baffle gates. You will need to insert your visitor's badge into the magnetic card reader at the side of the door for it to open. The card will remain inside the magnetic box.

Security

Security at Saint Pau is strict and there is a protocol in place to register all visitors in advance. Please send your security document number (passport, ID card) to EFI in advance so that this can be registered with security. ## Further practical information

Barcelona Airport (Code: BCN)

The airport is located 18km south of the city centre. It has 2 terminals: T1 (where most of the airlines operate) and T2 (the old one, which is divided into: T2A, T2B and T2C). Please pay attention to your flight terminal. There is a free shuttle connecting terminals, which takes around 10 minutes.

Between Barcelona airport and the city centre

Taxi:

Fares from the airport to the city cost approx. 30€ and the trip takes around 25 minutes. Taxis are located near the arrivals halls (look for signs)

Airport bus:

The AeroBus is a very frequent service connecting Airport T1 and T2 with the city centre (Plaça Espanya and Plaça Catalunya). See timetables on their website. Check your terminal when travelling from the city centre. Bus for T1 is labelled as Aerobus A1, and Aerobus A2 is the one for T2. Price is 5,90€ one-way per person, or 10,20€ return ticket valid within 15 days later.

Train:

For those arriving at T2, an excellent alternative to the bus would be the train. This terminal has a train station with direct trains departing every 30 minutes to central Barcelona (Passeig de Gràcia Station or Sants Station). You can buy a T-Casual transport card to use this service, purchase machines are there at the station. Alternatively, you can buy a single train ticket airport > city centre for 4,20€.

Metro:

The airport metro line, called L9 Sud, stops at both T1 and T2. The line does not connect to any major metro transport stations, however it connects in Collblanc station to Blue Line L5 to Sant Pau/ Dos de Maig and to our EFI Barcelona Office. Note that you cannot use a standard metro card and will need to purchase a special airport ticket for 5,15€.

If you plan to use public transportation during your stay in the city, the two main titles are:

Cost is 11,35€ for 10 journeys, each with 75 minutes between first and last validation. Use it for bus or metro zone 1-6, and for train R2 in Passeig de Gràcia or Sants Station to/from the airport. It is an individual title, so you cannot share it with other people if you travel together.

Cost is 10€ for 8 journeys in 30 consecutive days from first validation, each trip with up to 75 minutes between first and last validation. Use it for bus or metro zone 1. Note this title is not valid neither for airport L9 Sud metro line nor for train R2 to/from the airport. It is a multi-person title, so you can share it with other people if you travel together.
