

Practical information guide

Barcelona Airport

Barcelona main airport is Barcelona El Prat Airport, which is located 18 km south of the city centre. The Airport has two terminals, T1 and T2. Please check for your departure the correct terminal. There is a free shuttle service connecting the two terminals, which takes about 10 minutes.

Transport between Barcelona airport and the city centre

There are several options when travelling to and from Barcelona El Prat airport.

Metro

The L9 South metro line connects the airport's T1 and T2 terminals with the rest of the city of Barcelona. You should change at the Collblanc metro station for the L5 line, which is connected to the metrostop Sagrada Familia, a 3-minute walk from the hotel. You can buy the ticket at the machines in the metro station. The cost of a ticket is Euro 5,90. For more info see link.

Airport bus

There is a frequent and regular bus connection between the city centre (Plaza Catalunya) and Barcelona Airport T1 and T2. For schedules, please visit their website. Please check your terminal when travelling from the city centre (Plaza Catalunya), since the bus for T1 is labelled as Aerobus A1, and that for T2 is labelled Aerobus A2. You can buy the ticket on the bus. The cost of a single ticket is Euro 6,75 and for a return ticket Euro 11,60. You can also buy a ticket which includes one metro ride at Euro 7,90. See the link for more information.

From Plaça de Catalunya you can walk (34 minutes) or take the metro “line L2” or bus D50. For info on the tickets for the public transport please see below.

Taxi

Taxi fares from the airport to the city cost approx. 30 € and the trip takes around 25 minutes. Taxis ranks are located near the arrivals halls (look for signs in arrival halls).

Train

For those arriving at T2, an alternative to the bus or Metro would be the train. This terminal has a train station, with direct trains departing every 15 minutes to central Barcelona (Paseo de Gracia Station or Sants Station).

Public transport in Barcelona

Once in the city, if you plan to use public transport (metro, bus etc) you can buy a pass of 10 trips (see below). This is the most cost-effective way of moving around the city.

Otherwise, taxis are relatively cheap. For example, for an average trip within the city central areas, you can often spend around 10 €.

T-casual: Cost is 11,35€ for 10 journeys, each with 75 minutes between first and last validation. Use it for bus or metro zone 1-6, and for train R2 in Passeig de Gràcia or Sants Station to/from the airport. It is an individual title, so you cannot share it with other people if you travel together.

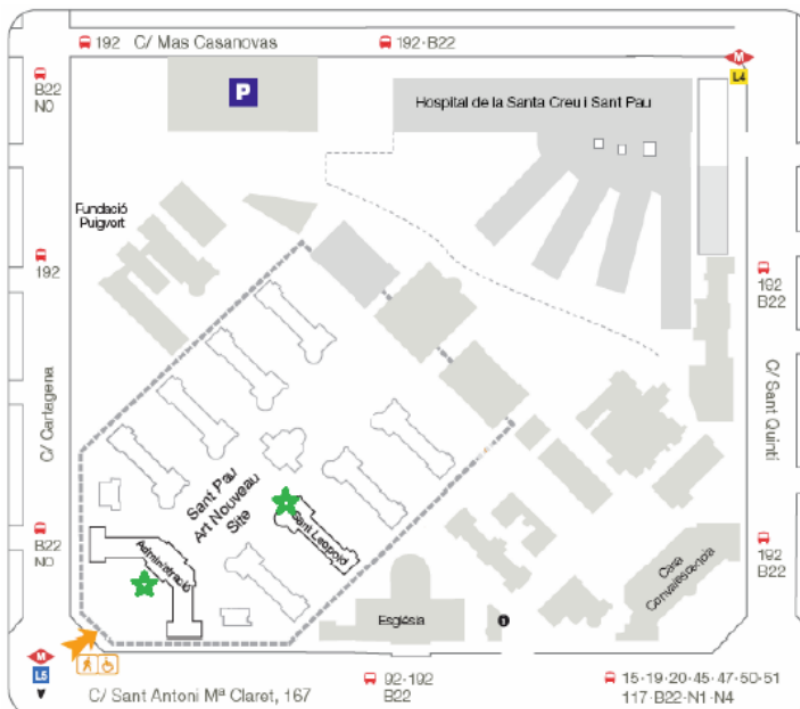

T-familiar: Cost is 10€ for 8 journeys in 30 consecutive days from first validation, each trip with up to 75 minutes between first and last validation. Use it for bus or metro zone 1. Note this title is not valid neither for airport L9 Sud metro line or for train R2 to/from the airport. It is a multi-person title, so you can share it with other people if you travel together.
